SharePoint Corporate Training Program Launched by SharePointHQ

New Training Program Provides Comprehensive SharePoint Training To Medium to Enterprise-sized Organizations' Current and Future End Users

Toronto, Canada (PRWEB) August 17, 2009 – SharePointHQ, a leading provider of training, professional services, hosting, web parts and solutions for Microsoft® SharePoint®, announced today the launch of its SharePoint corporate training program. The new training program benefits medium to large-sized companies needing to train large numbers of their end users, from a spectrum of audience types, in SharePoint.

The new training program is being launched in response to the overwhelming success of Microsoft SharePoint. With over 100 million licenses sold to date, SharePoint has become the de facto enterprise portal gold standard. This presents medium to large-sized companies with the challenge of training all their current and future employees in SharePoint in an affordable and timely manner. The SharePoint Corporate Training Program meets this challenge. Companies receive a unique training plan, based on a thorough needs analysis and input from key user groups, developed and delivered through a blend of train-the-trainer, knowledge transfer mentoring and on-site training sessions. Each participating company receives all required SharePoint courseware, including manuals, labs and screencasts, as part of their custom corporate training plan.

“Companies often invest the time and effort in implementing SharePoint as their company portal, and then look at training their employees in SharePoint almost as an afterthought. Employees aren’t given the right training, and the end result is that SharePoint isn’t fully utilized in a company, or worse it becomes an expensive file share”, said Hans Leuschner, Vice President, SharePointHQ. “The corporate training programs ensures not only adoption throughout a company, but also makes sure the company is well positioned to take advantage of all of SharePoint’s features”.

The SharePoint Corporate Training Program is available in Canada and throughout North America. Clients who purchase the SharePoint 2007 courseware will receive the SharePoint 2010 edition upon release. For more information on the corporate training program please visit www.SharePointHQ.com or call 416-585-9678, ext. 272.
